PULLING FOR THE UNITED WAY

This 1958 Mack B61 Thermodyne truck had already logged 1,101,865 kilometres in its lifetime. On Wednesday it added a few more rotations to the odometer, but without the help of its engine. Instead, the likes of, from front, Serge Paquette, Dan Nieuwenhuis and Nick Corcoran helped move the massive vehicle as part of the Gibson Truck Pull fundraiser for the United Way of Calgary and Area at Eau Claire Market. The truck hauled mostly diesel fuel for Gibson Energy before being retired from the fleet and restored. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Deerfoot Trail traffic dips in wake of Stoney opening

'Pretty rapid increase.'
Ring road leg sees 80 per cent jump in vehicles since opening

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

It's not exactly a smooth cruise for south-end commuters, but provincial data indicates there's been a dip in traffic on Calgary's busiest route in the months since another highway opened to the east.

The southeast leg of Calgary's Stoney Trail ring road opened behind schedule in late November but has since seen a continual surge in traffic. The latest Alberta Transportation figures from July indicate a point along the $769-million road network just north of Glenmore Trail sees an average daily two-way traffic count of 43,190, up 80 per cent from the 24,000 motorists seen on the route after one full month of operation.

On weekdays alone, an average of 51,000 vehicles were counted at the same point, a spike of 45 per cent over the previous December.

"It's a pretty rapid increase of users, certainly when you look at zero a year ago to it now being adopted by many users," said provincial spokesperson Nancy Beasley Hosker. "We do see it going up and up."

But the big question has long been whether the Stoney would draw vehicles off Deerfoot Trail.

Beasley Hosker stressed that the data sample is small, but year-over-year reductions were seen at a Deerfoot traffic-counting point just south of 17th Avenue S.E. in every month over the first half of 2014, with the exception of June.

The largest reduction in traffic at the Deerfoot point was seen in February, when 12,356 fewer daily vehicles were recorded. May and January also saw daily traffic reductions in excess of 7,000 vehicles.

Deanna McArthur said that within two weeks of the southeast Stoney leg opening she noticed a difference on Deerfoot during daily commutes from Cranston in the deep south to her place of employment along 64th Avenue N.E.

"It wasn't necessarily that I was getting anywhere faster, but it was less frustrating. I didn't feel as crowded, and it didn't feel as stressful," McArthur said, noting she also steers clear of Deerfoot and heads to Stoney if she hears word of a crash over the radio.

"It maybe takes 10 more minutes (to get home) on Stoney."

CIFF's 'enormous' 2014 run smashes box office records

Growing audience.
Ticket sales were up 50% from last year

YASMIN JASWAL
calgary@metronews.ca

The Calgary International Film Festival posted some record-breaking numbers before saying its final goodbye to the 2014 run on Wednesday.

"There's no other way to put it," said Stephen Schroeder, CIFF executive director. "This has been an enormous year for the Calgary International Film Festival."

The festival, which ran from Sept. 18 to Sept. 28, had close to 30,000 attendees, the highest in its 15-year history.

The 11-day event also saw a 29 per cent increase in film submissions, as well as a 50 per cent rise in ticket sales compared to the previous year.

Five films from this year's festival have also been successfully submitted to the Academy Awards for the best foreign film category, including Canadian director Xavier Dolan's film Mommy.

"CIFF is increasingly on the radar of and is a desired screening location for the nation and in fact the world's filmmakers," said Schroeder.

This year, CIFF added preshow entertainment as a pilot project to add to the overall event experience. A range of pop-up performances and activities, including performances by local rappers and roping lessons from the Alberta Rockies Gay Rodeo Association, went on before shows.

Schroeder credits much of this year's success to the programming.

"I think it was a very well-rounded film program this year. There's something for the rap kids, there's something for the fashionistas, there's something for the people who love the really serious docs.... That really helps, having that wide range."

Reel successful

There were more than 40 pop-up entertainment experiences for attendees to enjoy throughout the festival.

- This year, 1286 films were submitted to the festival. Almost 200 made the cut.
- Last year, CIFF had 20,291 attendees. This year, that number rose to 28,869 attendees.

Stephen Schroeder, executive director of CIFF, said 2014 was the festival's most successful run in its 15-year history.

Not to scare you, but Halloween is in 29 days

Not to fret. You can head on over to one of the Don's Hobby Shops, which are celebrating 65 years this weekend, to snag a costume

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Gone are the days of cutting holes in a bed sheet or throwing on a pair of fake fangs and hitting the town to raise a little Halloween havoc.

No, cosplay has turned serious in the city, according to Scott Bennie, co-owner of Don's Hobby Shop. On Saturday, his two locations will celebrate their 65th birthday.

Bennie said events like the Calgary Comic and Entertainment Expo have really set a fire" under people to ramp up their costume quality.

His store on Centre Street North, in turn, saw a surge in business, to the point that they were able to open a second spot just off Crowchild Trail in the community of Varsity three years ago.

"If you go to a party one year and you're just a guy with a sheet on and everybody else has gone the distance, you're probably going to go the distance next year, too," he said.

The original Don's Hobby Shop opened in the Lougheed Building in 1949. Bennie's father long did the bookkeeping for the original owner — who, evidently, was named Don Spicer — and then decided to purchase the shop with his son and move it to Centre Street. Nowadays, the stores feature over 14,000 products, everything from nail-through-the-head props to blue wigs.

Danica McDonnell popped by Don's on Wednesday to search for the latter item, one that would help complete her Alice in Wonderland-themed Halloween costume. She acknowledged that the big night is still weeks away but is pushing "boundaries" to top her get-ups from previous years.

"I'm going all out this year.... Since I got older, I'm trying harder," she said.

Friend Jacqueline Cunningham, meanwhile, is planning to go as a skeleton — one with carefully applied face paint and much more.

"I still want to look hot but I want to look like Halloween, not like I'm wearing lingerie as a costume," she said.

Bennie said Don's has become a common spot for people serious about their costumed endeavours, noting his locations even feature makeup experts.

"Some of it is word-of-mouth," he said. "Calgary's a big city, but a lot of people have heard of us just because we've been around for so long."

Boo! It's a party

1 Birthday celebrations will run at the two Don's Hobby Shop locations from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. There will be prize draws and blowout sales on certain items. For more information, head to donshobbyshop.ca.

2 Scott Bennie, co-owner of Don's Hobby Shop, said early sales indicate the most popular costume this year is Elsa from the hit kids' movie Frozen.

Jacqueline Cunningham, left, and Danica McDonnell were already busy planning their Halloween costumes Wednesday. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Sheila Taylor running for Wildrose in Calgary West

Alberta's opposition Wildrose party saved their highest-profile byelection candidate for last, announcing Wednesday that current Calgary Board of Education trustee Sheila Taylor will seek the vacant MLA seat in Calgary West.

Taylor said the opportunity to run came as a surprise even to herself after Tory MLA Ken Hughes announced Monday he would be leaving his post.

But, in a press conference, the two-term trustee was quick to borrow taglines from her new party compadres, stating she wanted to "send the PCs a message" and classifying starter schools announced by Premier Jim Prentice for four city communities as a "Band-Aid solution."

"We have a government who is very good at announcing new schools but who isn't actually good at building them," Taylor told reporters. "And it's our students and families in places like Calgary West who are paying the price. It's unacceptable. Frustrations have truly grown to a breaking point, and I believe that the problems that I've seen in education are just the tip of the iceberg of the PC government."

Taylor said she will be taking an unpaid leave of absence from her role as CBE trustee. In Calgary West, she will square off against former Calgary police officer Mike Ellis.

Byelections are also due to be held in Calgary-Foothills, where Prentice himself will run, Calgary-Elbow and Edmonton-Whitemud.

Late Wednesday, the CBE released a statement regarding Taylor's candidacy.

"The Board of Trustees has received a request from Trustee Taylor to take a leave of absence from her role of Trustee at the CBE while she campaigns for the byelection in Calgary-West. The Board will consider this request as soon as possible," the statement reads.

"The Board of Trustees is committed to govern effectively during this period on behalf of Calgary students and will ensure that the needs of students and parents in Wards 11 and 13 are fully represented."

No ordinary joe: National barista champ

Not many can say they've carved a career out of making coffee, but for Ben Put, firing up the espresso machine is part of his daily grind.

His coffee definitely isn't your average cup of joe. Put just returned from Toronto, where he took first place at the 2014 Canadian Barista Championship, with hopes of winning worlds in Seattle later this year.

And for those of you who like your morning fix nice and quick: one drink he served to judges took him three months to dream up.

"The whole time that you're serving them, (the judges are) rating the quality of your drinks but they're also rating the quality of your presentation," said Put.

He has been caffeinating customers for about 10 years and competing in the national and international barista competitions for six.

For Put, making coffee isn't just a job — it's a career.

"A seed just kind of planted in my mind that it could be a career and not just a stepping stone to something else," said Put.

He doesn't have a brick-and-mortar operation yet, but Put is working with two partners to open up a shop called Monogram, planned for Calgary.

Paskapoo perfect just the way it is, locals say

Don't ever change.
Concerns raised about development proposal — many residents want no development at all

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Many area residents want no development at all on Paskapoo Slopes, according to a summary of public feedback on a proposed project for the popular green space east of Canada Olympic Park.

At numerous forums held since plans for the Trinity Hills project were unveiled in June, members of the public raised a host of concerns, including a "significant theme" of wanting no development at all.

"Many people hold the site in high regard and feel there should be no development at all due to its environmental significance, its cultural value and its recreational amenities," the summary reads.

That, however, is not an option for city staff to recommend to council, according to the report, given the existing area structure plan for the land.

Hugh Magill, president of the Paskapoo Slopes Preservation Society, said the development would fragment popular mountain biking and hiking trails in the area and encroach on significant artifacts left behind by ancient, nomadic aboriginal tribes.

"It's as significant of an area, from an archeological perspective, as Head-Smashed-In Buffalo Jump," Magill said.

Cameron Wallace, a spokesperson for the developer, said the public feedback will be incorporated into "amendments and revisions" to the plan and said another open house is to be held later this year.

Coun. Ward Sutherland said he's still considering all the details but on the surface the project looks like a "significantly improved plan" over a previous proposal several years ago.

"It looks like a world-class development and hopefully it'll meet the needs of the community and the whole area," Sutherland said.

Proposal

The mixed-use Trinity Hills project has been compared to Whistler Village in its look and concept.

- It would include up to 1,600 units of housing, 500,000 square feet of retail space, 260,000 square feet of office space and 600 hotel rooms on about 100 of 260 acres of privately owned land.

Big-game hunters rally for right to canine company

Bird hunters and hikers can be accompanied by dogs, advocate notes

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

In the wake of a fatal grizzly encounter last month, hunting advocates are renewing their call for Alberta to join most other North American jurisdictions in allowing big-game hunters to be accompanied by dogs.

"It's an early warning system," said Cochrane resident T.J. Schwanky. "A dog is certainly going to sense a bear's presence long before you do."

Schwanky, who hunts worldwide and works as a writer and host for Outdoor Quest TV, said Alberta hunters are being subjected to "an old, antiquated law" that forbids dogs from walking with big-game hunters, a rule that doesn't exist in any other jurisdiction with mountain hunting that he's aware of.

"The idea of the law is to prevent pursuit dogs, and I'm totally in agreement with that," he said.

Rather, Schwanky said Alberta hunters should be allowed to have "pack dogs" at their side while they pursue prey to help carry weight in and out of the bush, to provide companionship on multi-day solo trips and to reduce the likelihood of human-bear encounters.

Currently, cougars are the only type of big game in Alberta that hunters can pursue with dogs at their side.

Duncan MacDonnell, a public-affairs officer with Alberta Environment and Sustainable Resource Development, said the province plans to revisit the law through a series of public consultations over the next nine months, but currently the evidence isn't conclusive when it comes to dogs and bear safety.

"Some experts suggest the presence of a dog can reduce bear encounters, while others say that, in certain situations, the presence of a dog can antagonize a bear," he said.

The Alberta Fish and Game Association, which counts about 20,000 people among its membership, has been lobbying the province to change the rules.

President Gordon Poirier said many members believe dogs would make them safer in the backcountry and highlighted the case of Rick Cross, a Calgary hunter who was killed by what's believed to be a surprise encounter with a grizzly in Kananaskis Country in early September.

"He had a rifle with him but he didn't have enough warning to use it," Poirier said.

Cochrane resident T.J. Schwanky says hunting big game in the mountains with a pack dog at your side is legal in virtually every jurisdiction but Alberta. CONTRIBUTED

Demanding democracy. Umbrellas come out at Hong Kong solidarity rally

Black shirts, yellow ribbons and umbrellas. That's how 22 Calgarians from two Facebook groups showed solidarity with their friends and family in Hong Kong during a rally Wednesday at the Municipal Plaza by city hall.

This after more than a week of pro-democracy protests in Hong-Kong turned violent. Police reportedly used tear gas and other measures to control crowds.

"We are watching live news every day right now when we are free, and it's just really sad and also really enraging to see our friends and family are suffering," says Vincent So, the student who initiated the Calgary Hong Kong Political Reform Awareness Group on Facebook. He's an exchange student from Hong Kong who has been living in Calgary for three years.

So still has connections in Hong Kong and like many others is watching the events unfold over social media.

"It's really hard to focus on our lives here. It's just so devastating, and we're just trying to do something to make us feel better, to make the people know and to try to contribute in this case in Calgary."

The main demonstration was set for Wednesday evening, but the organizing groups gathered early to grab the attention of passers-by to further their message: democracy for Hong Kong.

Free public Wi-Fi expanding to nine new locations in Calgary

Free public Wi-Fi is being expanded to nine new locations in Calgary through an existing partnership between Shaw and the city.

"We are really encouraged by the early success of the public Wi-Fi program and the positive feedback from Calgarians," Heather Reed-Fenske, the city's IT manager, said in a release Wednesday.

"Shaw has been an excellent partner, and their operational team has fulfilled our desire to expand free Wi-Fi into city facilities and allow the public to use technology when visiting a park, arena, golf course or LRT station."

The service, which comes at no cost to the city or to individual users, launched in May amid some controversy over exactly what Shaw would do with personal information it requires from users in order to register on the network and access the Wi-Fi.

Shaw CEO Brad Shaw initially stood beside Mayor Naheed Nenshi and told reporters that users would need to enter their email address and postal code but only as a way of registering unique guests, as each guest is allowed a maximum of 500 MB of data transfer per month.

"We don't do anything with the personal information," Shaw said at the time, but his staff quickly clarified that.

Shaw vice-president of external relations Chethan Lakshman later revealed that public Wi-Fi users would actually have to provide a host of personal information, including a name, email address, phone number, physical address, city, country, province and postal code.

"This customer data will be used by Shaw to occasionally send product announcements and customer satisfaction surveys on a select basis," Lakshman said in a statement provided to Metro following the official launch event at Devonian Gardens.

Between the May launch and the end of August, according to city records, total data usage peaked at more than 357 GB.

Look familiar? Police search for owner of antique photos lost in SE

Someone in the city is missing pieces of their past, and Calgary police are hoping the public can tell them who it is.

According to police, on Sept. 15 a "Good Samaritan" was on a run with his dog in the Lake Bonavista area when he found several pages from a photo album lying on the road.

"No one has come to claim them, which is why we're turning to the public for help," a CPS spokesperson said on Wednesday.

Most photos are in black and white and show children, weddings and families. They are believed to be from the 1940s. Two of the photos are in colour, and police believe they were taken in 1985.

Along with the photos, a more unique item, which is believed to be a train passport from Hungary, was returned to police.

According to the spokesperson, CPS has looked into reported break-and-enters and car prowlings in the area for any leads but have come up empty-handed. They have now turned to social media in hopes of finding the owner.

Police are asking anyone with information on who these photos could belong to, or how they ended up on the street, to call 403-266-1234 and quote case No. 14384030.

For more information or to view more photos of the album contents, visit the CPS Facebook page at facebook.com/calgarypolice.

Spreading love in hopes of deterring recruitment of youth by terrorist groups

'We need to be alarmed.' Calgary youth believed to have been lured by ISIS

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Promoting love and speaking out against hatred are the aims of a free show being performed by members of Calgary's Muslim community Thursday.

The performance, called Muhammad: The Astonishing Story of the Prophet, has already seen versions performed in Vancouver, Toronto and Edmonton.

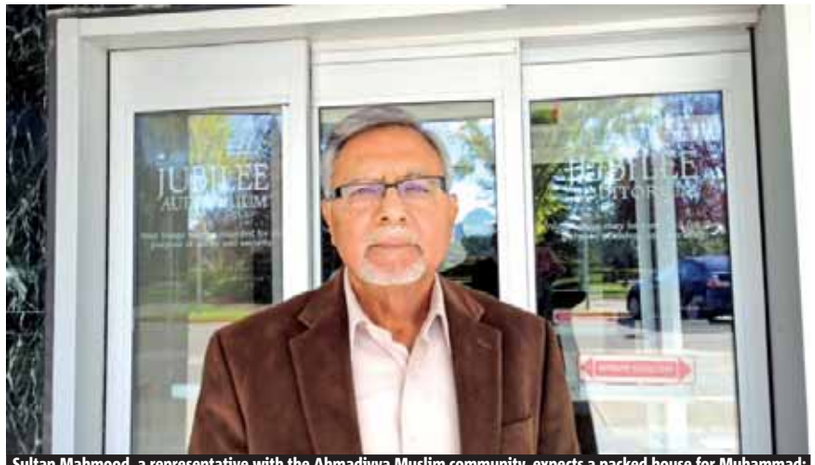
Sultan Mahmood, a spokesperson for the Ahmadiyya Muslim community, said they just couldn't ignore the disturbing actions of the radical group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS). So it began, the planning of their own show.And they will raise the curtain Thursday at 6 p.m. at the Jubilee Auditorium.

Mahmood deemed reports of a handful young-adult males from Calgary being recruited by the terrorist group known as Islamic State of Iraq and Syria as particularly disturbing.

"It's my personal opinion, but I don't think (Calgary) has become a hotbed (for recruiting) but we need to be alarmed, we need to take action at the community level and at the government level," he said.

"We want the Muslim youth to understand that they shouldn't be drawn into the wrong hands of ISIS and also we want the general public to know that Islam and Muhammad does not teach terrorism and has no place for terrorism."

Mahmood said people have flocked online in recent days to book their seat for Thursday's performance, which will feature a collection of songs, poems and video clips.



Sultan Mahmood, a representative with the Ahmadiyya Muslim community, expects a packed house for Muhammad: The Astonishing Story of the Prophet scheduled for Thursday at the Jubilee Auditorium. CONTRIBUTED

According to Mahmood, just a few hundred tickets for the 2,400-seat auditorium remained available for the show as of Wednesday morning.

The radical group ISIS has made international headlines in recent weeks after terrorizing villages in Syria and Iraq, forcing thousands into exile, and including posting online videos of the beheading executions of two American journalists as well as a British aid worker, while pledging further attacks.

Calgary police chief Rick Hanson said Wednesday that more communication is needed among Canadian communities and police in hopes of rooting out the recruitment efforts of terrorist groups acting in Canada. He said police agencies have long been warned about potential efforts of such religious radicals in Canada.

"We were warned of it by our European partners years ago, like eight to 10 years ago, saying 'Your biggest risk is going to be the homegrown terrorists, the radicalized youth in your country.' We've been warned, it's been coming … this is just another add-on to policing, where there has to be more attention focused on this issue."

Human Rights Act. Prentice quietly signals he won't touch law allowing parents to pull kids from sex-ed classes

Alberta Premier Jim Prentice is signalling he has no plans to revisit a law that allows parents to pull their kids from classes when subjects such as sexual orientation are taught.

Speaking on a CBC Radio phone-in show, Prentice deflected questions on the controversial section of Alberta's Human Rights Act.

Instead, he said his job as premier is to ensure the rights of all Albertans are balanced.

Civil liberties groups have protested the opt-out-clause, which allows parents to pull children out of class if sexuality, sexual orientation or religion are taught.

They say the clause is discriminatory and suggests that issues such as sexual orientation are less equal than other topics.

Prentice said he has demonstrated his commitment to equality when he voted as an MP in favour of same-sex marriage in 2005. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Karadzic genocide trial.
Ex-Bosnian Serb leader insists he is innocent

Former Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic insisted Wednesday that prosecutors at the UN's Yugoslav war-crimes tribunal do not have "a shred of evidence" linking him to atrocities during the Bosnian war and accused them of trying not only him but all Bosnian Serbs.

Still, Karadzic acknowledged that as wartime leader of the breakaway Serb entity in Bosnia, he "bears moral responsibility for any crimes committed by citizens and forces."

1992-95 war

Karadzic is charged with crimes including genocide and persecution committed by Bosnian Serb forces during the 1992-95 war that left 100,000 dead.

The 69-year-old accused prosecutors of building their case on "allusions, random chit-chat (and) testimony by their own employees."

Former Gitmo detainee walks free

British prosecutors dropped terrorism charges Wednesday against former Guantanamo Bay detainee Moazzam Begg, just days before he was due to stand trial for allegedly attending a terrorism training camp in Syria in 2012-2013 and for funding terrorism, among other charges.

Prosecutors acknowledged new evidence had emerged that undermined the case. Begg walked free after spending seven months in prison awaiting trial.

Jun Lin's ex testifies at Magnotta's murder trial

Stayed friends. Feng Lin says he stopped getting texts from Jun Lin on the day friends last saw slain student

Jun Lin was a fitness buff who didn't smoke, drink or do drugs, a former lover of the slain Chinese student told court during Luka Rocco Magnotta's first-degree murder trial.

Feng Lin testified Wednesday that he and Jun Lin, 33, were lovers from late 2010 until mid-May 2012, not long before some of Jun Lin's remains were found in trash outside a Montreal apartment building.

Feng Lin, a 35-year-old software company manager who travelled from China to testify, said Jun Lin's family did not know their son was homosexual. "He was experiencing some pressure from his family and he was kind of obliged to go into a relationship with a girl for an eventual marriage," Feng Lin said.

Feng Lin, who has permanent resident status in Canada, went to China for the summer on May 13, 2012, less than two weeks before Jun Lin was slain.

The witness testified they remained friends when the relationship ended and that he texted Jun Lin up to 50 times a day, with his ex-lover's last message coming on May 24, 2012. That was the day friends last saw the Concordia University student.

He said he asked friends in Montreal to look for Jun Lin, but they were unsuccessful. He then decided to come back to Canada. While in transit, he was told by a friend about a video online that appeared to show Jun Lin. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada preps for potential Ebola case

Low risk. Hospitals looking out for cases among people who went to West Africa

Canada's Health Minister and the head of the Public Health Agency of Canada say the country has been preparing in case an Ebola case arrives in Canada.

Rona Ambrose and Dr. Gregory Taylor insist the risk of that happening remains low but say much work has been done to beef up the country's ability to respond should it happen.

The two spoke at a news conference called to address concerns raised by Tuesday's announcement that a Dallas hospital diagnosed Ebola in a man who recently travelled to the state from Liberia, one of the hardest-hit countries.

Taylor says the Public Health Agency has worked with the Canada Border Services Agency and with airlines to advise them on what to do about passengers who appear to be ill while flying or when trying to enter the country.

Hospitals have been alerted to be on the lookout for possible cases among people who have travelled to West Africa.

Taylor says the Public Health Agency is considering sending doses of an experimental Ebola vaccine to hospitals that have been designated to look after Ebola cases if they occur, so health-care workers could use it if they have a risky exposure to a patient.

The vaccine was developed at the agency's National Microbiology Laboratory in Winnipeg.

Provincial laboratories are working to develop the ability to test for Ebola, with Quebec's facility already capable of doing so, Taylor says. Provincial labs in Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta and Nova Scotia will soon be able to test for the virus as well, he says.

"They can rule out Ebola very, very quickly," Taylor says. "And if they get a preliminary positive they will ship that to our laboratory (in Winnipeg) and we will do a definite positive to be absolutely certain. And that's part of the preparedness in case somebody does get through, comes to Canada with Ebola." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Franklin Expedition. Ship Canada found in Arctic is HMS Erebus

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says the shipwreck found in the Arctic last month is HMS Erebus, the vessel on which Sir John Franklin himself sailed in search of the Northwest Passage in 1845.

The discovery of the wreck, found some 11 metres below the surface in the Queen Maud Gulf, was confirmed Sept. 7, but was not identified until now.

The two ships of the Franklin Expedition and their crews, 129 members in all, disappeared during an 1845 quest for the Northwest Passage.

Since 2008, Parks Canada has led six major searches for the lost ships, which were the subject of many searches throughout the 19th century.

The mystery of exactly what happened to Franklin and his men has never been solved. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Anti-cyberbullying curriculum will save lives, teen's mom says

Canadian Centre for Child Protection. Laureen Harper says the money was 'very well spent'

Leah Parsons, mother of Rehtaeh Parson, a victim of cyberbullying, speaks at a press conference at the Canadian Centre for Child Protection in Winnipeg on Wednesday. JOHN WOODS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A mother who says her daughter was driven to suicide by relentless cyberbullying says a new curriculum will help combat a lack of empathy shown by teens online and save lives.

Leah Parsons said the teaching material, introduced by the Canadian Centre for Child Protection in Winnipeg on Wednesday, gives her hope for the future.

"We live in a digitized world that is not going to change," she said. "The online world can be very desensitizing, and I feel that empathy for others is lost.

"Imagine the mistakes we all made as teenagers. Now imagine these mistakes being caught on film, on camera and then imagine being ridiculed over and over again."

Rehtaeh Parsons was taken off life support in April 2013 after a suicide attempt. The 17-year-old girl's family says she was sexually assaulted in 2011 and then subjected to months of online bullying.

Another teen, 15-year-old Amanda Todd from British Columbia, committed suicide in 2012 after being extorted for two years. She exposed herself while on a webchat, and the image was used to blackmail her into putting on another "show" online. She posted a heart-breaking, nine-minute video online detailing her torment before committing suicide.

The curriculum, which is available to all teachers across Canada, is aimed at kids in Grades 7 through 10. The material touches on sexual exploitation, sexual violence and healthy relationships. It was funded by a $100,000 gift from the federal government to mark the birth of Prince George of Cambridge.

If the consequences of cyberbullying had been openly discussed in schools, Parsons said her daughter's tormentors might have thought twice.

Laureen Harper, wife of Prime Minister Stephen Harper, said she's pleased teachers will have access to materials that will help keep children safe.

"I think the money was very well spent," Harper said at the launch. "They tackle head-on some of the most vile and disturbing activities, behaviour that makes your skin crawl and heart break."

Lianna McDonald, executive director of the Canadian Centre for Child Protection, said the centre is seeing a steady increase in the number of teens struggling with cyberbullying.

Today's teens are dealing with a mix of normal adolescent risk-taking, technology and sexual violence that no other generation has faced, she said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tackling cyberbullying

Unlock your genes' secrets

DNA. 23andMe now offers ancestry and genetic health info to curious Canadians

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

Canadians interested in learning about their DNA can now send their spit to 23andMe, a Silicon Valley company, and receive information about their ancestry and reports on their genetic health risks.

The service, which has been banned in the U.S., analyzes participants' DNA and, through its website, provides information about customers and their family members based on their genetics.

Customers receive a report on their ethnic ancestry and are given the option of connecting with their unknown relatives in the 23andMe database.

Canadian customers receive access to 108 health-related reports on genetic risk for health conditions, drug responses, genetic traits and inherited conditions.

23andMe used to offer a similar health-report service in the U.S. but was banned from doing so by the Food and Drug Administration for failing to provide the FDA with information to support the claim that its reports are accurate.

The kit that Metro reporter Jessica Smith Cross used to analyze her DNA. JESSICA SMITH CROSS/METRO

23andMe CEO and co-founder Anne Wojcicki said the company is working with the FDA to gain approval but that it didn't have to jump the same regulatory hurdles in Canada.

"We've come here a number of times and met with Health Canada," she said. "We got the specific feedback that we are not a therapeutic. Therefore we do not require pre-market approval."

The health-related information 23andMe offers Canadian customers ranges from frivolous to serious. For example, customers will automatically see if they have a high or low tolerance for caffeine.

However, they have to opt-in to learn if they have mutations of the BRCA gene that present a high risk for breast cancer, the LRRK2 and G2019S mutations that present a risk for Parkinson's or variants of the APOE gene that present a higher risk for Alzheimer's. They are given information about the link between the genes and the diseases before choosing to opt-in.

Customers can also download their raw genetic info and share it.

Next week Metro will take a look at the implications of 23andMe and commercial genetic testing.

THE HIDDEN COSTS OF FLYING (FOR DUMB PEOPLE)

HE SAYS
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

I'm in favour of the new checked-baggage fees on Canadian airlines because, when it gets right down to it, I'm in favour of anything that will get everybody else to stop flying.

I like flying myself. Literally, I like flying myself.

Unfortunately, flying is more popular than ever, even as airlines charge for everything "extra," such as the wings. At this rate the oxygen masks will all be coin-op and the flight attendants will tell you not to blow up your life jacket until you've paid the Emergency Improvement Fee. Inflation these days.

The airlines' new fees caused a media tizzy and led to a series of helpful TV pieces letting you know that you can avoid checked baggage if you:

- Wear all your clothes at once à la the snowsuit in A Christmas Story.
- Roll what you can, including T-shirts and your iPhone 6.
- Condense all your rage at airline fees down into an angry little ball deep in your soul, where it won't bother anyone. For now.

Airline customers are upset, but if it keeps them on buses or motorcycles or skiffs then, by all means, charge them a landing-gear fee during final approach.

I'll be cool with that, because the fewer people in the air with me, the better. Every time I fly my thought is always the same: has nobody ever flown before?

It starts at the airport. EVERYBODY lines up for the plane at the first sign of boarding as if the pilot is out front revving the engine and honking the horn because he has to get to Newark before the liquor store closes.

People have told me this is because passengers want to get good space for their overhead baggage, but I maintain it's because they are not the sharpest tool on the banned-items list. Why? Because they do the same thing when it's time to get off.

During boarding I'm amused, but while disembarking it drives me nuts. Passengers leap to their feet the second the plane stops — with the door closed, the stairs missing, no space to stand up and a layout that requires you to exit one row at a time. All so you can rush to a baggage carousel that has no baggage on it yet.

So everybody's annoyed at flying right now, including me, but I have a compromise that could help: airlines should drop the proposed checked-baggage fees and instead make up costs by charging for all in-flight idiocy. I call them Facepalm Fees.

Even putting aside the rush to get on and off, airlines could introduce penalties for leaning on aisle seats as you walk ($5), talking to flight attendants like they're servants ($100) or whomping your seat backward during the meal (summary execution).

Another solution would be for me to relax, but I'm afraid it's impossible with all this emotional baggage.

But don't they know climate change is a myth?

Weary walruses come to shore in record numbers

Pacific walruses that can't find sea ice for resting in Arctic waters are coming ashore in record numbers on a beach in northwest Alaska.

An estimated 35,000 walruses were photographed Saturday near Point Lay, an Iñupiat village more than 1,000 kilometres northwest of Anchorage, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The gathering of walruses on shore is a phenomenon that has accompanied the loss of summer sea ice as the climate has warmed.

Pacific walruses spend winters in the Bering Sea. Females give birth on sea ice and use ice as a diving platform to reach snails, clams and worms on the shallow continental shelf.

Unlike seals, walruses cannot swim indefinitely and must rest. They use their tusks to "haul out," or pull themselves onto ice or rocks.

Raymond Chandler's characters brought to life by Calgary group

Vertigo Theatre.
Company kicks off new season with a visit to the dark world of Philip Marlowe

There's something about a well-crafted mystery that excites an audience — drawing them in with rich mood and style, making them figure out "whodunit" along with the protagonist, and throwing in a few sexy dames, a bloody murder or two and the requisite lineup of cops, drunks, gamblers and mobsters.

Vertigo Theatre's season opener, Farewell, My Lovely has all that going for it and more, guided by the charming but flawed anti-hero Philip Marlowe (America's most famous private detective), a boozing womanizer charged with finding the dame.

Show director Craig Hall (who is also the company's Artistic Director) amps up the excitement by launching Vertigo's six-show mystery lineup with a world premiere of a new Canadian play by Aaron Bushkowsky, and partnering with Vancouver's Arts Club to bring it to Calgary audiences.

"There's some risk in opening new Canadian plays, but Aaron has done a great job of taking Chandler's work — the most literate, hard-boiled novel ever written — and streamlined the plot to focus on Marlowe's relationship with three core female characters," said Hall.

"I wanted to open with a splash — something with high energy — and this is it."

What is it about a mystery, still one of the biggest-selling genres in fiction, that appeals to young and old, guys and gals alike?

Hall said that ultimately, audiences want to be entertained, but lovers of this genre also appreciate the complexity, and the desire to lean into the work and think vigorously without being fed a lesson.

"There's no political or social agenda with a murder mystery and it's exciting that in recent years, our broader mandate has allowed us to go down different paths while still being mystery-centric," Hall said.

"For much of our 30 years, Agatha Christie's The Mousetrap played every season. Now we're moving beyond the drawing room setting to include horror, capers and even ghost stories.

"People have an idea of what murder mystery theatre is, but if they don't know Vertigo, we'll defy their expectations."

Drug lord's wife becomes a detective

Gracepoint. Breaking Bad's Anna Gunn co-stars in new adaptation of British murder mystery

How would you react if Skyler White pulled you over in a police car? That became a reality for some L.A. residents when the actress who played a drug kingpin's wife on Breaking Bad put on a uniform and joined an officer for a ride-along.

Anna Gunn was preparing for her new role in Gracepoint, premiering Thursday on Global, in which she plays a small-town detective investigating a child murder. The two-time Emmy winner recalled shadowing the officer as he stopped and questioned several people.

"I was like, 'What if they're Breaking Bad fans?" she said with a laugh. "The officer said, 'Oh, no, that won't be a problem. You'll just say, 'Oh, I get that all the time.'"

Gracepoint is the new adaptation of acclaimed British series Broadchurch. The show starred David Tennant and Olivia Colman as detectives in a picturesque community that is devastated after an 11-year-old boy is found murdered on a beach.

Tennant reprises his role as a crotchety outsider with a hidden past in Gracepoint, replacing his Scottish brogue with an American accent. Meanwhile, Gunn takes on Colman's role as the warmer Det. Ellie Miller, who has a family and strong roots in the town (Oak Bay, B.C., posing as northern California).

Gunn said she was "swept away" after binge-watching Broadchurch, and was immediately drawn to Miller.

"I really loved the duality in her character, the fact that she was really strong but confident," she said. "She's got a soft heart. She believes deeply in the goodness of people. I just loved that she had so many things going on at the same time ... She was trying to be a good mom and a good detective and a good wife."

Tennant recently admitted he was nervous to meet Gunn and see if he could recreate the strong working relationship he forged with Colman. Gunn agreed she felt anxious before meeting her co-star.

"I did feel a little bit of nerves, but they evaporated as soon as I met him," she said. "He's very funny and open. He's truly a lovely human being ... I think we just both approach working in a similar way."

She said she felt "so lucky" to work with Tennant after having such a close relationship with her Breaking Bad co-star Bryan Cranston. Gunn won her second Emmy in August for her role on the popular series.

The early episodes of Gracepoint are similar to Broadchurch, but it has a bigger-name cast, including Nick Nolte and Jacki Weaver, 10 episodes instead of eight and a different ending.

Canadian actor Kevin Zegers, who plays small-town reporter Owen Burke, said the show is "diametrically opposite to 95 per cent" of what's on television.

"It's like a really, really good movie that happens to last 10 hours," he said. "Whether I were in it or not, this would be a show I would be watching."

Want to date Taylor Swift? Learn to ignore all those other guys with cameras

Taylor Swift is going to have to find a new source of inspiration for her songs because she's perfectly happy staying single for a while.

"Dating or finding someone is the last thing on my mind, because I can't picture how it could work with the way my life is," she tells British Vogue. "I don't know how a guy is supposed to walk next to his girlfriend when there are 20 men with cameras, and he can't protect his girlfriend because that's the life she chose."

Gotcha. We should expect lots of songs about the paparazzi in the future.

The usually creative Swift is apparently baffled by how to work a romantic relationship into this famous-person setup.

"I just don't see how it could work, so I don't think about it and I kind of run from it when it presents itself," she says, adding that men have still been trying to woo her. "They think that they would want to get to know me and maybe date me, but I don't think they want what comes with it."

Facebook films offer new dawn for frustrated Twilight fans

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Stephenie Meyer

You thought our Twilight days were behind us, didn't you? Well think again.

Series creator Stephenie Meyer (who would rather you not ask about Twilight follow-up the Host) is looking for five aspiring female directors to create short films for Facebook based on Twilight characters.

I'm honestly torn here. On the one hand, creating high-profile opportunities for aspiring female directors is awesome and should be encouraged. But on the other hand, Twilight.

I just don't know what to think.

Adding some highbrow validity to the project? The panel that will be selecting those filmmakers: Kristen Stewart will be joined by Frozen director Jennifer Lee, original Twilight director Catherine Hardwicke, producer Cathy Schulman, Modern Family star Julie Bowen and Oscar winners Octavia Spencer and Kate Winslet.

And Lionsgate, the studio financing the whole deal, knows how to be vague and threatening.

"We think Facebook is a great way for us to introduce the world of Twilight to a whole new audience, while re-energizing existing fans," vice-chairman Michael Burns tells the New York Times. "This is just the beginning — a template, if you will. You can probably guess what's coming next."

Don't play coy with me, Burns. Just tell me that I'm not done covering Twilight films yet. Team Neither forever, yo.

Gwyneth's mom wants to know how Martha could be so cruel

Hey, remember a couple of weeks ago when Martha Stewart called out Gwyneth Paltrow for aping her lifestyle guru shtick? Here's a refresher, just in case: "If she were confident in her acting, she wouldn't be trying to be Martha Stewart," Martha Stewart said. Well, Paltrow's mom, and longtime Stewart pal, Blythe Danner is less than thrilled. The National Enquirer reports that Danner "asked Martha how she could say such a cruel thing about her daughter," a source says.

Stewart's response? She said that "she was just calling 'em as she sees 'em. Blythe was disgusted." They say you could feel the earth tremble in East Hampton.

Ex-panting your horizons: It's a new dawn for denim

Beyond blues. Fashion experts dish on five fresh fall denim styles for women

Women seeking to diversify their denim from traditional basic blues can expect to see fresh hues, prints and updates of popular styles in jeans on offer for fall. Denim experts dish on five fresh styles.

Black denim

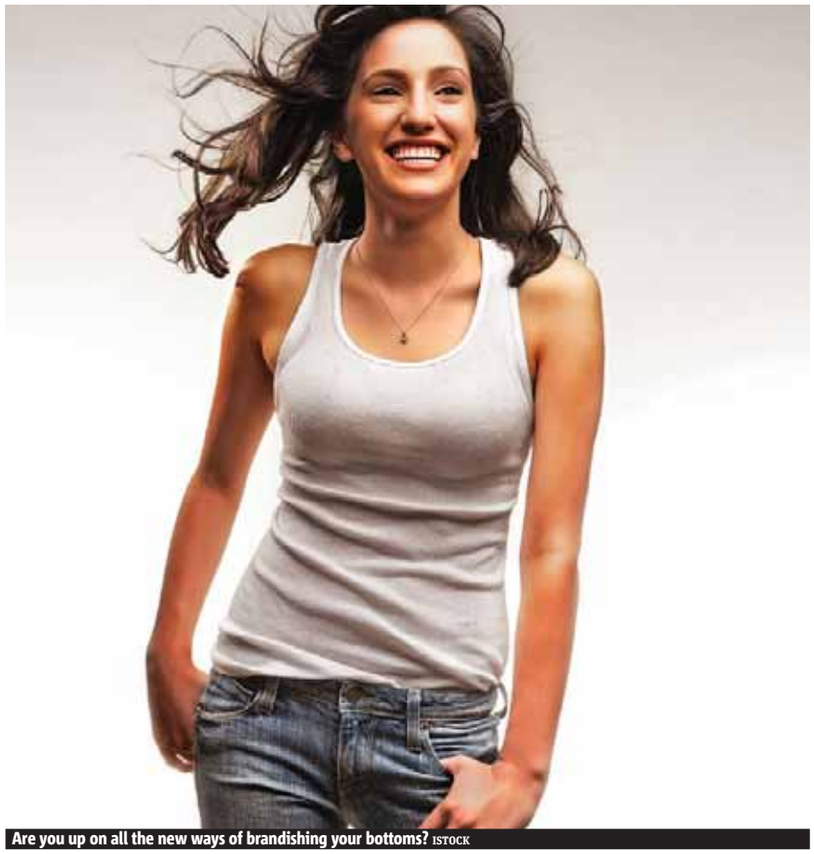
After months of seeing jeans bathed in a range of hues, it's back to black in a big way for the colour that seems to transcend seasons.

"Black is essentially the new denim," said Gap Inc. spokeswoman Heather Hopkins. "It is the most wearable colour for many people, not just in terms of colour, but in terms of silhouettes and shapes and how it flatters one's body, too."

Toronto-based image consultant and personal stylist Lisa McLatchie offers a free copy of Denim DNA for visitors to her site (lisamclatchie.com), to help individuals select the best jeans for their body type.

As workers wear jeans more regularly to the office, McLatchie said a darker wash gives women a dressier alternative for day. What's more, it offers women who may be more self-conscious about the lower halves of their bodies another more slimming dark-hued option.

"It's even one step above the dark blue for minimizing areas they may be self-conscious of," McLatchie said.



Are you up on all the new ways of brandishing your bottoms? ISTOCK

Plaid

Pretty prints like florals and stars have lent eye-catching detail to denim in recent years. But tartans are also emerging as a statement-making pattern.

"I would say sort of the only rule with patterns is if a woman is a little bit curvier, she'd want to avoid patterns that have more straight lines in them. A plaid could be tricky for somebody who has fuller hips and is a bit curvier," said McLatchie. "Women with curvier lower halves would maybe want to stick with some sort of geometric print or abstract or floral, polka dots ... as opposed to lines and stripes and plaids."

McLatchie said when selecting prints, consider sticking with patterns that are in the same scale as body proportions.

"A lot of women think that if it's a larger print and they're a larger woman, they can't get away with it. But it actually is more flattering to do it that way."

When it comes to teaming printed jeans with tops, McLatchie recommends keeping the garment on the upper half of the body in a solid neutral. But women can still have fun and mix prints and patterns and a bold range of colours if they so choose, she noted.

Complement your curves

"A lot of women think that if it's a larger print and they're a larger woman, they can't get away with it. But it actually is more flattering to do it that way."

Lisa McLatchie,
Image consultant and personal stylist

"You can still go for things that still have a different texture that pick up a colour that's in the jeans, like a cable-knit sweater or mohair or angora," she said. "You're still adding some sort of visual interest and element with the texture as opposed to the pattern."

The boyfriend

The comfy boyfriend style offers a hybrid of both slim and relaxed styles, and a new variation on the horizon for fall is being offered with the cuffs pre-rolled. Nigel Seebaran, menswear buyer at Over the Rainbow, a premium denim boutique in Toronto, said the cuffed style pairs well with flats or cropped boots.

"I think it's a great look for the fall because it gives your denim a little more depth and a little more of that relaxed look," he said, noting that pairing the jeans with a looser shirt offers an "effortless chic."

Looking to dress up the boyfriend? Consider teaming them with a pair of wedges or heels, Seebaran said.

THE DESTRUCTED ALWAYS SKINNY JEANS ($79.95), FROM GAP AND THE 1969 PLAID ALWAYS SKINNY JEANS ($84.95) FROM GAP. GAP.COM

Distressed denim

Distressed denim is best for women seeking a more laid-back style. While it pairs well with classic runners, Seebaran said the look can be made more upscale with a pair of flats or shoes showcasing a bit of lift and flash.

"Dress them up with a great black bootie, which will give you a great contrast," Seebaran said. "For a great pop of colour, throw on your favourite heels with them. Just being able to have a little bit of stacking at the bottom with a nice skinny jean will give a great look."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Let's hear it for the boys

While men may not have as vast a range of denim selections at their disposal as women, there are still ways for guys to shake up their ensembles while incorporating jeans into the mix.

- Fashion expert Glen Baxter said a cross-Canada survey conducted by Mark's found that the top reason men say they buy and wear jeans is for comfort. Baxter is collaborating with the homegrown apparel retailer to help men seeking to transition their warm-weather wardrobe into the cooler months with new denim.
- For men in need of an everyday pair of jeans for running errands, Baxter said a well-fitting, medium-wash pair or one in a relaxed fit are likely their best bets. But for a look that can translate to fit more upscale occasions, a darker-hued option may be the way to go.

Picture your perfect moulding pattern

DIY. Walls make a great canvas for designs made from moulding

Visualizing the perfect home renovation and actually doing it are two completely different things. More often than not, it's not as easy as the pros make it look. For instance, timing and costs can often be higher than expected.

Before losing hope, here is a small budget-friendly project with a big payoff: DIY moulding wall art. Instead of just using moulding to trim ceilings and door frames, this project shows how to use moulding to create wall designs that will command attention.

Location, location, location

The first step to moulding wall art is selecting a room and a design type that will suit its style. The living room or bedroom is a great place to start this type of project.

Mount moulding on to the wall to outline a bed instead of a headboard or build a large frame to showcase other items like a painting or an accomplishment.

Cut the moulding accordingly to create diamond shapes and sporadically place them along the wall to decorate a bare area. Moulding wall art can be adapted to look great in any room.

Mix it up

Local hardware stores will carry a variety of mouldings. Select a style that has a lot of detailing for a more complex look or something simpler that you can put your own twist on.

There are no limits to styling and designing. Layer the planks to raise the moulding, use square panels to produce a checkered look, or cut different shapes to create a pattern. Let your creativity run wild!

Tips & tricks

Once a room and a design type have been selected, sketch out a plan on paper to help visualize the final product and determine measurements.

Consider using medium-density fibreboard as it tends to be less expensive and can be cut and shaped easily. When mounting the moulding, use a nail gun or hanging strips to avoid damaging the wall.

Be sure to paint the wood before mounting it to the wall. This will help prevent getting fresh paint on the walls, especially if it's a different colour.

When the project is complete, use sand paper, wood filler, and paint to correct and smooth areas.

Tin fish doesn't have to be boring

There is no reason why you can't use canned fish to make exciting appetizers, snacks and even entrees.

In her book Tin Fish Gourmet, Barbara-jo McIntosh shares a range of recipes that will transform canned seafood such as salmon, tuna, oysters, mackerel, sardines, crab meat, anchovies and more.

The recipes are perfect for students, those on a budget or those with time constraints.

Among the included dishes are Oyster Pot Pie, Corn and Salmon Fritters, Asian Shrimp Stir-Fry, Swiss Chard and Salmon Lasagna, Anchovy-Stuffed Dates and more.

Canned fish beyond casserole

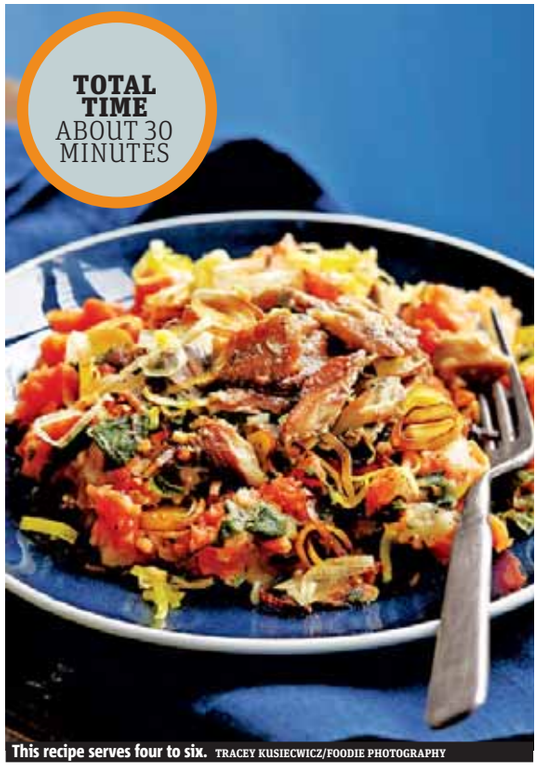
Roasted Mackerel with Spanish Mash and Fried Leeks.

Bursting with flavours, this dish is surprisingly easy to put together

"On a recent trip to Barcelona, I enjoyed this mash at a tapas bar located in the grandest food market I have ever visited," writes Barbara-jo McIntosh in her book Tin Fish Gourmet.

"I was so in love with the market — and with this particular tapas bar — that I ate lunch there on each of the four days I was in the city."

Spanish Mash



This recipe serves four to six. TRACEY KUSIECWICZ/FOODIE PHOTOGRAPHY

1. Preheat oven to 200 F (93 C). Warm a casserole dish in oven.

2. In a large pot of boiling water, boil carrots for 4 minutes. Add potatoes and garlic, and boil for another 13 minutes. Add Swiss chard and boil for another 3 minutes. When carrots and potatoes are tender and ready to mash, remove pot from heat and drain.

3. In a food processor, briefly blend cooked vegetables with oil, salt, and pepper (do not over-process; a little texture is both pleasing to the palate and rustic to the eye). Taste for seasoning. Place in warmed casserole dish and cover.

Roasted Mackerel

1. Preheat oven to broil, with rack in middle.

2. In a small stainless steel (oven-proof) frying pan on medium heat, melt butter. Stir in smoked paprika. Place mackerel fillets in pan, turning until completely coated. Place in oven and roast until brown and bubbly, about 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Fried Leeks

1. In a small cast-iron frying pan on medium-high, heat oil. Add leeks and fry for 2–3 minutes, or until crispy, then drain on paper towels.

2. Divide Spanish Mash between two serving plates. Place roasted mackerels on the mash, and top with crispy leeks.

Week 15

Stampeders at Roughriders, Friday, 8 p.m.

The Calgary Stampeders can become the first team to cement a playoff berth this weekend.

Calgary (11-2) visits the Saskatchewan Roughriders (9-4) on Friday night needing a win or Winnipeg Blue Bombers loss to clinch a spot in the post-season. It's also an important matchup for the defending Grey Cup champions, who are currently tied for second in the West Division with the Edmonton Eskimos.

The Stampeders have been a model of consistency this season despite injuries to a number of their starters, most notably running back Jon Cornish, quarterback Bo Levi Mitchell and rush end Charleston Hughes.

The Stampeders failed to generate a touchdown last Sunday against the B.C. Lions. Drew Tate threw for just 162 yards but Cornish ran for 156 yards, Rene Paredes booted four field goals and Calgary's defence registered two interceptions to anchor a 14-7 victory.

Saskatchewan's defence has a CFL-high 52 sacks but the importance of a pass rush is diminished if a unit can't stop the run.

Last weekend, Edmonton's John White ran for 192 yards and a TD against the Riders. Up next is Cornish.

Wednesday's announcement that the Riders will start rookie Seth Doege at QB just adds to the uncertainty in Regina.

Pick — Calgary.

Stamps hot potato handed back to Tate

CFL. Hufnagel mum on reason for reversing stance on Mitchell's readiness to start

After saying Bo Levi Mitchell looked ready to quarterback the Calgary Stampeders again, coach John Hufnagel gave Drew Tate the nod to start Friday in Regina against the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"There's two reasons. One is that Drew has had an excellent week of practice," Hufnagel told reporters Wednesday. "The other reason I will tell you when I'm done with my coaching career."

Calgary went 1-1 with Tate as the starter while Mitchell sat out with a sprained ankle and stretched ligament in his left leg.

After watching Mitchell practise Tuesday in wet conditions at McMahon Stadium, Hufnagel said "it looks good that he'll be playing the game," although the coach added he would wait another day before declaring his Friday starter.

Tate, 29, will get his third straight start this season. Meanwhile, the Roughriders announced Wednesday rookie Seth Doege will get the start Friday. The defending Grey Cup champions are also shuffling quarterbacks in the absence of injured veteran Darian Durant.

Doege split duties with Tino Sunseri in a 24-0 loss to the Edmonton Eskimos last week. Doege got on the field in the third quarter and was 5-for-11 in pass attempts for 61 yards. He threw one interception.

Stamps coach John Hufnagel said a strong week a practice from Drew Tate, pictured, gave him the confidence to give starter Bo Levi Mitchell another week to recover from the sidelines. RICHARD WOLOWICZ/GETTY IMAGES

When Mitchell was injured in the fourth quarter Sept. 13, against Toronto, Tate completed a 40-33 comeback win going 6-for-6 in passing with a pair of touchdown throws and a two-point convert pass.

He completed 51 per cent of his passes for a combined 314 yards in his next two games. Tate rushed for a pair of touchdowns in a 31-15 loss to Montreal in Week 13.

Mitchell dressed as Calgary's third-stringer but didn't play in Saturday's 14-7 win over the B.C. Lions. Tate didn't throw a touchdown pass in the two games and was intercepted once.

"We have all the confidence in the world with Drew," Hufnagel said. "I do, the coaches do, his teammates do and he has a lot of confidence in himself."

Mitchell will dress for Friday's game, Hufnagel added.

McDavid's talent inciting tank talk

Looking ahead. With top junior drawing comparisons to Crosby, chance to land No. 1 pick in 2015 could take sting off of losing this season

In a sport that doesn't exactly feature the language of saints and choirboys, there's a dirty, four-letter word that even hockey players don't want to hear: tank.

Tank, in this case, refers to losing to guarantee a high draft pick. And no other year in recent memory is it considered a more popular route to take, with at least two potential superstars in Connor McDavid and Jack Eichel on the board.

"I don't think any team's really doing that," McDavid said in an interview. "No NHL team, no OHL team, no team ever would purposely lose or tank or have a bad year for (a high draft pick)."

Lose on purpose? No, players on some of the league's rebuilding teams like the Buffalo Sabres and Calgary Flames aren't trying to lose, but it's no secret that a handful of organizations that are down on their luck could use the kind of boost McDavid or Eichel should provide.

Eddie Olczyk remembers from his time as coach of the Pittsburgh Penguins from 2003 to 2005 what it was like to lose, preach patience and hope.

"I know what we were trying to do in a similar situation," Olczyk said last week in Buffalo. "You do need that stud or two to come down the pipe."

For the Penguins, it was No. 1 overall picks Sidney Crosby and Marc-Andre Fleury and No. 2 overall picks Evgeni Malkin and Jordan Staal. Each of the past six Stanley Cup champions had at least one player picked in the top three: the Chicago Blackhawks' Jonathan Toews and Patrick Kane, Los Angeles Kings' Drew Doughty and Boston Bruins' Tyler Seguin.

McDavid, considered the front-runner to go first overall in June's draft in Sunrise, Fla., might be the closest thing to a quick fix there is. The six-foot playmaking centre has drawn comparisons to Crosby since he was 15 years old.

Fans of bottom-feeding teams are already thinking ahead to what it would be like to have McDavid or Eichel next season. Of course the Edmonton Oilers and their three consecutive No. 1 picks and zero playoff appearances show that's not always a recipe for success.

But McDavid is supposed to be different: a once-in-a-generation talent who's worth a season's worth of losses. Still, the 17-year-old said he's not watching the standings or thinking about what jersey he'll be putting on in nine months.

"You can't really worry about that," McDavid said. "There's no second-class organizations in the NHL. They're all great spots. Wherever I'm fortunate enough to go, it'll be great." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chances dwindling

The NHL has made it a little bit harder for the league's worst team to win the draft lottery.

- Now, the team with the fewest points has a 20 per cent chance of getting the No. 1 pick instead of 25, the team with the second-fewest has a 13.5 per cent chance instead of 18.8 and the team with the third-fewest has an 11.5 per cent chance instead of 14.2.

Connor McDavid had 99 points in 56 games played with the OHL's Erie Otters last season and already has eight in the three he's played so far in Erie's current campaign. DENNIS PAJOT/GETTY IMAGES

Galácticos barely survive UEFA Champions League minnows

Real Madrid's 10 European titles were no protection on the road in the Champions League on Wednesday.

Real Madrid trailed early against Bulgarian newcomer Ludogorets Razgrad, which was only formed as a club 13 years ago — in the same season the Spanish giant won its ninth title.

After Ludogorets' stunning sixth-minute opener, Cristiano Ronaldo had a penalty saved and then scored with a second spot-kick in the 24th, before Madrid got substitute Karim Benzema's 77th-minute goal to force a 2-1 win.

"We played as equal to Real, and I am delighted with our performance," Ludogorets coach Georgi Dermendzhiev said.

Ludogorets' fans have to travel 335 kilometres to watch their team play at the national stadium in Sofia because the club's 6,000-seat arena does not meet Champions League standards.

But the supporters had reason to celebrate early after Brazilian midfielder Marcelinho headed in a cross flicked on to the far post. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Race to catch Raul

Cristiano Ronaldo had a 10th-minute penalty saved by goalkeeper Vladislav Stoyanov, but soon got a second chance to convert and closed in on Raul Gonzalez's record of 71 Champions League goals in the group stage and knockout rounds. Ronaldo has scored 69 goals — not including one in a qualifying-round match — and leads Lionel Messi by one in what promises to be another season-long duel.

Phelps blew close to twice legal limit

Police documents indicate that Olympic swimmer Michael Phelps registered .14 per cent on a breathalyzer test after he was stopped on a speeding violation.

The legal limit for intoxication in Maryland is .08.

The statement of probable cause by the Maryland Transportation Authority police also says Phelps' eyes were bloodshot and "his speech was mush mouth." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brady moving on

"It's important not to ride the wave of emotion of, 'Yeah, we're really great,' and, 'Yeah, we're terrible this week.' It doesn't serve any purpose other than to understand the things that you need to correct."

Packers OL laments Thursday nighter

Offensive lineman Josh Sitton could use a break.

Unfortunately for him, the NFL schedule calls for Green Bay and its standout left guard to play the Minnesota Vikings on Thursday night — just five days after the Packers' last game.

This didn't make him happy on Tuesday.

"I hate it," Sitton said.

Life in the trenches can be enough of a grind with the pounding that occurs in the running game.

Tuesdays are when offensive linemen really feel the pounding. It's usually a day off in a normal work week in Green Bay.

This is no normal week.

"I think it's stupid. I think it's all about money for the NFL, obviously," Sitton said regarding Thursday-night games. "That's what this league is about, is about making money — which is fine. I like to make money, as well.

"But, yeah, it's tough on your body, tough on your head," Sitton said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ratings rise for Royals comeback

Extra innings boosted viewership for the American League wild-card game.

The Kansas City Royals' comeback 9-8 win in 12 innings over the Oakland Athletics on Tuesday averaged more than 5.2 million viewers on TBS. The network said that's up 14 per cent from last year's NL game between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh to open the post-season, a 6-2 Pirates win. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
No one doubts your dedication but are you dedicated to the right goals? The planets warn you should not aim at a particular target just because you think it is expected of you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Don't wait for permission to do something you know is right. Even the most agreeable Taurus should be more assertive when there is a higher good at work.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You can afford to take a risk today where affairs of the heart are concerned. Don't be afraid to reveal your innermost feelings to the one whose affections you are after.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
A positive attitude is often enough to turn the tide, so look on the bright side of today and don't worry about tomorrow. The surge of confidence you feel should be enough to see you through this difficult phase.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Sometimes change can be the best possible thing to happen. Bear that in mind today if you feel that things are moving fast.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You don't like to see people you care for make fools of themselves but it seems they are pretty determined about it, so what can you do?

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There is an easy way and a hard way to get to your destination. The easy way is to co-operate with people you don't always get along with. The hard way is to try to do everything yourself.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
It seems you are having second thoughts about a project. Yes, it's going to be tougher than you expected. Have faith in your abilities and be willing to work harder than everyone.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
There are some things that can only be done as part of a team. You may be eager to get things started but until those you work with are ready to begin, you won't make much progress.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Even the most ambitious of Capricorns will be at peace with the world today. No matter how much you are provoked you cannot be bothered to react.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The Sun and Venus in one of the best areas of your chart means you can see the positive side of most situations. Have a laugh.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Act on the assumption that there is no such thing as chance. If something unusual happens today there is sure to be a reason for it and your job is to find out what it is.
